LILLIE'S LOCK OPENED IN ONE MINUTE!

NEW YORK, September 2, 1864.

F. TILLMAN, Esq., 318 Battery street,
Bet. Commercial and Clay, San Francisco.

DEAR SIR: WE NOTICE AN ADVERTISEment in your daily papers respecting the "security" of the "Lillie" lock. We are aware that you well understand this lock, and, of course, will not allow yourself to be annoyed by such representations. We have just sent for one of our men at the factory, and he, in our presence, opened one of Lillie's best safe locks, after it had been locked and the combination turned on,

By one Blow of the Hammer

Against the knob on the outside, and thereby breaking the cast iron bolt on the inside.

The whole time occupied in opening the lock was about ONE MINUTE. We send you this lock that your friends may not be deceived by false representations, etc. Respectfully, etc.,

A. E. TILTON,
WM. McFARLAND.

NO PRACTICAL
Lock Picker or Thimble-rigger
Required to OPERATE THE SAID LILLIE LOCK.
Any parties desirous of seeing the above mentioned lock, its insecurity and easy mode of opening the same, can call at 318 Battery street, San Francisco.

GLOUCESTER, March 26, 1864.

Messrs. TILTON & MCFARLAND,
Safe Manufacturers, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen: From representations made by Mr. Lillie, I was induced to purchase one of his

So-called "Fire Proof Safes,"

On the 18th of February last, a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and our own with the rest. We trusted our books, papers and all in the safe. After the fire the so-called "safe" was taken from the ruins, and on opening it we found that Everything was Destroyed.

We send you the safe, with what is left of the papers, and you will see that not one of them is legible or strong enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we noticed McKenrie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & MCFARLAND'S make), and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition.

This led us to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar —such as lard, pork, etc.—their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the clothing business and had but little in the cellar. There was another of Lillie's safes here subjected to the same fire, faring, however, no better than our own.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
[Signed:] GEO. L. CHESBRO & CO.

THE ONLY PROTECTION
Against Fire and Burglars.
For the last Fifteen Years

This safe has been well knewn in California and the Eastern States. They have resisted all the fires on the Pacific coast, and we can point with satisfaction to the record that out of one of our safes by means of burglars. Their fire and burglar proof qualities are so well known that they need no further recommendation.

No man ever lost a dollar

A good assortment of Tilton & McFarland's Fire and Burglar Proof Safes to be had at

No. 318 Battery street, San Francisco.

THE HUMAN HAIR

HAS LONG BEEN THE STUDY OF THE most scientific men of the age, from the fact that close study generally causes the hair to fall off prematurely; and, in consequence, they have given the subject a portion of their valuable time, trying to invent some method to regain their lost locks; but all their labor was in vain, until after many years of hard study devoted to this one subject, has produced an article that

WILL MAKE THE HAIR GROW,

and which, by its use as a Hair Dressing, will effectually and always prevent its loss—even to extreme old age. Happily, the while possessing these virtues, is most delightful and agreeable without regard to their virtue. The hair, when diseased, becomes dry, and commences to turn grey, which is caused by the non-secretion by the capillary glands of a peculiar oil. It has therefore been thought and believed that if the glands were stimulated into action, they would still give a sufficient supply of nourishment to the hair; but alas! they forget one very important law of nature, viz: that ALL STIMULANTS HAVE THEIR REACTION; and the more the glands were stimulated—the sooner the final loss of the much prized locks. The principle of the preparation invented by Professor Crockett is entirely the opposite—instead of stimulating the capillary glands, he feeds them with the substance they require, and, in turn, the hair is fed by them—on the same principle as giving water to a flower. All we will say to those who are timid about trying new preparations is, that we strictly guarantee the AMYGDALINE to be entirely free from all stimulants, and is as harmless as filtered water, and can be used on the smallest infant. As a

it is unequalled by any the world has yet produced. It keeps the head entirely free of dandruff, eruption, pimples—imparting to the hair a beautiful glossy softness not obtained by an known compound. It will also be found both pleasant and useful as a Cosmettiques, rpassing cold cream and face lotions in its effects; for chaps, sore breast and nipples we know of no remedy that is equal to it.

THE PERFUME

used is such that the AMYGDALINE will always retain, it will not become rancid by age; in fact, it is perfect in every particular. Professor Crockett's Amygdaline can be had of all druggists and dealers everywhere. Price 50 cents.

Ask for Crockett's Amygdaline, and take no other. se25-6m

A TRUE STORY.

BY JULIA P. MANNING.

'It is in vain, Ellen, to urge me. I cannot, I will not be a party to deceit. No good ever came from it; none ever will. It is beneath you as a true woman.'

'Nonsense, John; you know well I only mean 'to do evil that good may come.' I will not injure either of your friends; in reality, I shall be doing them good.'

'Ellen, I tell you again you are playing with edged tools; you will get wounded, and can find no doctor able to heal or cure you.'

'Oh, you double-distilled croaker. I'll make you confess my woman's wit is worth something yet. Au revoir.'

Thus ended John Justice's interview with his cousin, Ellen D'Arcie. They separated, equally dissatisfied with each other, and mutually determined on cross purposes. They were poor, ambitious, and, as betrothed lovers sometimes are, half sorry for a promise given in a moment of excitement and pique, a promise that each wanted broken, yet which neither had the courage to entirely ignore. Such is society; such is the world!

John had scarcely left his cousin's presence when he encountered her father, whose shaggy brow gave token of an Ætna about to hurl curses if not destruction on his despised nephew.

'Good morning, Captain Hoare; I am happy to meet you. Can I have a moment's conversation with you?'

'No, sir; and the sooner you make yourself scarce, the better for you and my silly daughter, who cannot distinguish between tinsel and gold. Begone, Mr. Surgeon, and never attempt to put your foot inside my door again, or to cast a thought on Miss Ellen D'Arcie.'

'Easier said than done, my gracious uncle,' remarked the young, without turning to leave.

'Are you going? or must I forget that you are of my blood, and kick you?'

'Sir, I shall not move without seeing your daughter, and learning from her own lips if ——'

The noise in the chamber had attracted Ellen's notice, and she ran to the door, but stopped at the entrance, too terrified to enter.

'Oh, tell me what has happened. What has cousin John done?'

'Don't be alarmed, Ellen,' replied her betrothed, there is nothing to tremble at. I made a proposition to your father, but he forgot his good manners in answering it.' So saying, he quitted the house, turned out at the gate, and there came face to face with Mary Hoare. She blushed, and then held out her hand and said:

'Well, cousin John, when are you to be my brother—my step-brother, I mean?'

'Mary, I have asked Ellen's father. He received my proposal as if it were an insult. He would not hear me, or listen to an explanation. But Rome was not built in a day. Brich was added to brick, mortar to mortar, stone to stone, pillar to pillar. Will you strive to remove his prejudices?'

'Has my father forbidden you the house?'

'Mary, listen. Your father knew of our engagement, tacitly gave his consent, and now, at the end of two years, opposes our marriage, because a richer son-in-law may be had. I will confess to you that I have lately fancied that Ellen too had become colder and less confiding than formerly, and I, I also, have left my idol, for I had changed. I do not say that I wished to break faith, but I will confess that I wish we had always been content with a cousin's love Enough of this. See your sister; find out if she would wish to be released; and if so, she shall be free as air before the sun has set. I ask this for both our sakes; a life or lives of misery may be spared, and much remorse also.'

'Why, John, are you crazy? Don't you know that Ellen is trying to catch William Sanders? See her, and ask her yourself. I dare not interfere; I will not. Don't press me to do what may be construed into wrong. No, no; anything but that. If you love her, and she loves you, win her; if not, free her. Do right, and all will be well.' So saying, Mary Hoare glided away, leaving John gazing after her, with a sad and tender "My darling,' whispered too low even for the ears of the gate-keeper, who appeared within a yard of the spot where the cousins had been conversing. And well it was so, for a mischief-maker and liar was Humphrey Hayes. Anything more faultlessly lovely than Mary Hoare never existed even in the imagination. It would require a pen more eloquent than mine to describe her clear, pale cheeks, just tinted with the most delicate coral flush; eyes deep and dreamy as those of the imperial Eleanor, and rich masses of the darkest brown hair. There was power and passion latent in the mouth and chin, which, perhaps, were too full and firm, though none could wish them otherwise, and the small head, with the perfect grace of the posé, and the fairy-like feet and hands, might have served as models for a sculptor. He looked after her,

"Dizzy, lost, and unbewalling,
Unable to decide 'twixt heart and head.'

How much longer his mind might have wandered towards forbidden fruit it would be hard to say, had he not been rather sharply reminded of his bonds by a "Good Day, Master John; waiting for Miss Ellen? Well, well, she's a bonny bird; but Lord, masther, she can't howld a candle to Miss Mary, begging your pardon, sir, always.'

'Stop your jaw, Humphrey, and answer me, if you can, truly, for I know you are an old rogue, ——'

'Aisy, aisy, masther; dont't spill your milk before you have it.'

'Bother! Tell me, does William Sanders think Mary the prettiest, or does he like Ellen best because she's our heiress?'

'Maisther John, how should I know? He palavers the two of them; and maybe he likes money and Miss Ellen too. Sure, now, you'll say small blame to him.'

'Confound you for an old time-serving fool, can't you be honest for once, or must I thrash you to get the truth out of you?'

'Hold on, sir; here's the decent gentleman himself; can't you ask him?' So saying, Humphrey turned with a comical leer towards a young man, who now appeared at the end of a gravel walk, which led towards the grapery, with a 'Just in time, sir. Maisther John was enquiring afther you.'

The latter was confused for a moment, but rallying quickly said with a bow and outstretched hand, 'Mr. Sanders, our friend here has introduced us. Let it suffice. I have the honor of claiming a not very remote cousinship with you. Will you join me in a stroll? I see you have your rod; I can show you some sport, come;' and John struck off through a by-path, followed by Mr. Sanders, who, though calm and self-possessed in appearance, felt anything but pleased and comfortable. He followed quickly, and soon both stood by the sea shore in silence for a moment. Sanders was the first to speak.

'Where is this good sport to be had, Mr. Justice? I should think one would find a rod useless here.'

'Even so, sir. I wished to ask you one or two questions, which I beg you will answer candidly. 'Tis true that, though cousins, we are strangers; still we ought to be gentlemen.'

'Really, sir,' replied Sanders, 'you are a queer specimen of a cousin, a queerer one of a conscientious gentleman, and a most extraordinary bore, if ——'

'Mr. Sanders, I excuse you; I am all these; but for your soul's sake bear with me. Hush, sir, you must be silent. Do you love Ellen D'Arcie? Do you know she is my betrothed wife? Do you think she loves you? I know her father does your reputed estates. Hush again. Don't be afraid to answer, if she wants to be free, I will never trouble her, but pray that the angels may watch over her and her husband, whoever he may be.'

'Mr. Justice, as I have had the honor to remark, you are a curious medley of good and bad. Your conscience tells you that you are faithless; you wish to leave the blame on Miss D'Arcie; you admire Miss Hoare, who, though no heiress, possesses beauty and also a master mind. Easy sir; I've listened to you—now it's my turn. Well, between two angels, you feel yourself a sinful man—I insist on your hearing me out—that you know that you are not worthy of the eldest's beauty and riches, and to show your humility would take the youngest. Now, sir, rest assured that I have no idea of marriage with either of the ladies, their father and cousin to the contrary notwithstanding. Indeed I have not even canvassed in my own mind which of the divine ——'

'One word more, sir, from your blasphemous lips, and I will stretch you at my feet. Remember, however that Captain Hoare has forbidden my union with his daughter, so that in reality I am no longer a privileged suitor.' So saying, our hero turned on his heel, whistled to old Ponto, and with a cool 'Good day,' left the beach, without once looking behind at his late companion.

Sanders, with a shrug, was about leaving, when he met an old friend and school-mate—no less a personage than the rector—who advanced with a smile and an outstretched hand. 'Holloa, Sanders, is this you? and vegetating here?'

'Not so,' replied the latter; 'I am in a thriving soil, if I may judge by your jolly countenance—too much so for a parson—but I beg your pardon, you don't ask me a thousand questions in a second, so I'm sure you're a husband, for such specimens as I have met have been check-mated and tongue-defeated.'

'Hold, man, not so fast, or Milly will never forgive you. Here, come along; yonder is the parsonage. I have just been to see a parishioner whose days are numbered, though craving still for fame and preferment. It is sad. This clinging to earth for its dross—not that fame ought not to be courted—is only the exclusive worship of Mammon and its surroundings. You, Sanders, have been fortunate in winning it.'

'My dear fellow,' answered Sanders, all that sort of thing is very well, but it loses its value when you know that those equally get it, and equally deserve it, too, whom you can't help considering big babies. Fame, to satisfy a man, must be won on the field of his own choice. However, que sais je? I feel a gigantic failure now, because I have never had any chance, but I might have had it, and been a bigger one. I strive for philosophy enough to accept what odds and ends of good one may pick up in this most queer muddle of life. 'Grizzling hair the brain doth clear,' as Thackeray said, and some day I may make practical acquaintance, with that incomprehensible virtue known as resignation, and effect a becoming salut. Meanwhile, suppose you introduce me to your wife, and give me some lunch.'

Milly was in the drawing-room, welcomed Sanders warmly, and soon she was chatting with him with the familiarity of an old acquaintance. 'By-the-by,' said William, 'there is a cousin of mine here in these parts. I met him for a second today. What sort of a young fellow is he?'

'A thoroughly good one in his way. Ask Milly about him; he's engaged to her bosom friend.'

Milly laughed. 'It would be rude to tell you, Mr. Sanders, that Mr. Justice is perfection, for he's not the least like you. But I don't think you could impress on him ——'

'Milly, child, you have no skill in describing character; let me help you. Justice is a very good fellow, Sanders, with plenty of common sense and good average abilities. He seems trying hard to be a good surgeon, and I think bids fair to succeed. He has drawn a prize—if he and said prize don't get tired of waiting.'

While they were speaking, Ellen D'Arcie entered the room. Her color rose a little, but she was not the girl to be overcome by any feeling of awkwardness, and held out her hand frankly to Sanders. He took it, and their eyes met for a second. I suppose she read in his what every man in whose veins ran hot blood, and not ice water, must have felt at the sight of her youthful beauty, for her color deepened, the long eyelashes rested on her cheek, and there was the faintest smile on her mouth. We soon commenced looking over plans for a school-house I was going to build, all busy, and we were only recalled to the present by the announcement that luncheon was ready. After we separated, I asked Milly what she thought of my old friend.

'Oh, Mr. S. is clever, certainly; but I should think it would be a long time before one knew him thoroughly, especially if he happened not to wish it.'

'You are right, little wife; Sanders is a hard nut to crack. I know him better, I think, than most men, and have long since given up the idea of getting to the bottom of him.'

'Well, Frank,' said the little woman, 'I'm not very wise myself, perhaps, but I have had the light of your superior intelligence for some dozen months, and I do see some things. I like him because he's your friend, and his talk is clever and strong, and —and—but still, Frank,' (she broke off suddenly,) 'why did he look like that at Ellen?'

I burst out laughing. 'Like what? you little dunce. You had better ask him yourself.'

'Don't tease,' said Milly; I want to be very serious, please. Why did he look like that? He knew she was engaged to John. Frank is Mr. Sanders good? If he wants anything, will he not try to get it if he can? Will he care much for making others unhappy? Frank, I know she loves John well and truly. How could she help it? But I don't feel quite sure that she loves him quite in the same way that I did you before we were married. But I know she will love him just as I do you now. Frank, John is good. Is it not better to be good, even if we are not quite so wise?'

'Come Milly,' replied the parson, 'you are a dear little woman, but don't be angered till Sanders shows the cloven foot. Give him the benefit of the doubt, and suppose it doesn't exist, I dread lest my old friend William, who is more to me with all his faults than any other man, should fancy—and he is as sharp-sighted as a lynx—that there is any coldness or arriere pensée whatever in our welcome of him.' So saying, he sauntered away from his wife's side, and then found himself muttering, 'What if my wise little wife should be right after all?'

Time fled Sanders' stay with us extended to about ten days. The Hoares and we always lived much together. It was painful to watch Sanders' partial glances; both fared alike, and both seemed to see everything in his presence couleur de rose. Our friend John never appeared, though pressed by Milly, who voted him jealous of Ellen's undisguised admiration of his cousin. Once he said to her in the parson's parlor, 'Ellen, let us end this farce. You no longer care for me, and I am cooling towards you.' But she laughingly declared that she would not free him.

Weeks passed on. It was the old lovers' story —quarrelling and making up—when one morning in June Ellen D'Arcie and Mary Hoare found themselves orphans. Captain Hoare was found dead in his bed, and left his young daughter helpless and dependent upon her step-sister. After the funeral, both girls listened to their father's last will, in which he requested all debts to be first paid, and if aught remained it was to be given to his step-daughter, Ellen D'Arcie. All were amazed, for his income was apparently large enough to have left the poor children both independent. Ellen was unselfish, and declared that her sister should share equally with her. 'Not so,' said Mary; 'I am only sixteen, but I know I can learn to teach.' It was vain for sister, cousin and friends to rebel, she quietly said, 'Cousin John thinks I am right, and I know I am.' The heiress was visited and condoled with, and her sister had gained a situation in a school. Ellen grumbled, and pouted at her quiet letters, feeling too vexed and proud to understand a petted child's feelings at finding herself alone in the world. John Justice, in the meantime, had sent a calm letter to his betrothed, freeing her and asking to be forgiven, as his heart no longer beat for her, etc. On receipt of the letter she turned pale, and seemed lost in thought. A few moments later and she was laughing gayly with Mr. Sanders

Two weeks later, the world was startled with an account of the marriage of Ellen D'Arcie and Mr. Sanders, who immediately started on their bridal tour, leaving sad eyes and hearts at the parsonage, and a thoughtful surgeon driving to do his duty, unmindful of the pitying gaze of friends and acquaintances.

Mary Hoare had now been two years at Madame Legrand's academy, when she received a long letter from John Justice, asking her hand and heart. She started, grew faint, and would have fallen had it not been for the timely arm of a gentleman who had entered unheard. He gently assisted her to a sofa, and handing her a glass of water from a sideboard, said 'Drink, and forget.' She obeyed. After a moments silence she said

'Mr. Elliott, I am a miserable girl. I ever loved Ellen's cousin, and fancied that I was dear to him. This letter proves that I was right. Now you know, or say you know, that a bar lies between us. You say it would be sin for me to marry him. Prove this; I insist on it, in justice to us both, Poor John! fooled by both sisters!'

'Miss Hoare, allow me to whisper one word in your ear,' The word was spoken, and the now horrified young girl fell lifeless on the sofa, muttering, 'Oh, God! pity him—and me!'

Mr. Elliott rang the bell, and desired that the young lady should be removed to her own room, requesting at the same time the presence of Madame Legrand, who came in all flurried, and said, 'Mon Dieu! vy you no take bet'er care of Mademoiselle? She vill attraper un coucher instamment, but she ees so particulaire she no like so domestique sleep in her chambre, and ——'

'Madame, I wish to speak to you; will you listen to me?'

'Mon ami, certainement; but——'

'Madame, Miss Hoare is ill. Spare no trouble or expense, and look to me for payment. I will acquaint her sister, who perhaps may call;' and he left the room with a hasty bow, the madame looking after him, muttering, 'I will pay you von leetle bill for dis, monsieur.'

We now return to Ellen, who had been married two years previously, and was now a mother. She had married from pique, and cared but little whether her husband was happy or not, until she became a mother. After her boy's birth she tried to have him oftener for her evening's companion, but she found, however, that he was not so easily led back as she had hoped. He scarcely noticed the boy, and it was vain for the nurse to attempt to coax a kiss from 'baby's papa.' She declared to the nursery maid that Mr. Sanders was the coldest piece of man flesh she ever met, and she had seen lots of the critters!

One morning as Ellen was trying to plait a dainty little robe, her cousin John was ushered in, pale and haggard, looking like a maniac, at least in her eyes. She had not seen him since her marriage. She rose impulsively, saying, 'Oh, John, what is the matter? What of my husband? What—'

'Be seated, Mrs. Sanders,' replied he, 'and be calm. I know nothing of your husband, but presume he is well, and, of course, is the possessor of such a prize, happy. I come to ask you—and for God's sake do not deceive me—if you know anything of Henry Elliott, or if you think Mary cares for him. I remember asking you one morning to be careful, and you answered that you were doing evil that good might come. Oh, it did come. It caused the death of my playmate, and confinement in a mad-house to your cousin. Ellen, in God's name, for the sake of your boy, tell me is this true that Mary writes?' and he placed a tiny note in her trembling hand. She was now pale and agitated, and even he pitied the cowering form. 'Speak, oh, Ellen, in mercy, speak!'

Ellen read, and after a few moments excessive agitation, handed it back to him. 'John, I know nothing of this. It may be so; I'll ask William; he may have heard.' Her lips were white, though her voice was calm. Evidently the woman was suffering tortures.

'Ellen, you are prevaricating. Remember the fate of poor Lizzy Bates and Andrew Hayes, in consequence of your—but I spare you. If you are deceiving me now, may the tortures of the damned be yours. May your boy—'

'Oh, John, John, stop; my innocent babe—let him not suffer.'

'Yes, I say, yes; curses on your child, and—'

'John, dear John, in mercy!' and she sprang up, placed one hand upon his mouth, then sinking at his feet she cried, 'Forgive, forgive! I am miserable. I am an unloved wife, but a loving mother. Listen. I loved you first, but soon found that Mary had gained your heart. I loved her too. Father knew all. He told me you were his illegitimate son; that your mother was a beautiful peasant girl, who died giving you birth. A promise to your mother obliged him to care for and keep you near him. His sister Emily died soon after in India, leaving her boy to father's care. That boy, John, died on the way over, and you came in his stead. Now you know how and why I acted as I did. I was bound under oath to my father. He died suddenly, and I feared to speak even now. For my boy's sake—you won't curse him, dear John—I break my oath, and may God forgive me. Poor John; dear John! oh, look up, speak; surely you who have borne so much will not sink now. Hush! here's Sanders is coming; John, for my sake, be gentle and forbearing, for he is unkind and unfeeling, even in his best humor—at all events here. Hush!'

A moment later, her husband entered the room, noticing John by a slight bow, and with a cold, 'Ellen, I must leave by the afternoon train for Shoreditch,' left the room, and the cousins were once more alone.

DEATH OF R. M. JESSUP.—The telegraph reports the death of R. M. Jessup, at Panama. Mr. Jessup was a pioneer of this State, noted for his enterprise and benevolence. He served in the Legislature of the State, and from its organization was a prominent member of the California Steam Navigation Company, of which he was Vice President at the time of his death.

DUTCH FLAT ENQUIRER.

SATURDAY MORNING, FEB. 25, 1865.

Now, by St. Paul, the work goes bravely on,
The Stars and Stripes are up for Liberty,
Flag of the Nation--Talisman of the Free,
Curs'd be the hand that dares to pull thee down.

☞ Catholic service will be held to-morrow, (Sunday,) in the Theater, commencing at 10 A. M. Father Callan, of Forest Hill, will officiate.

GLORIOUS NEWS—CHARLESTON EVACUATED AND COLUMBIA (S. C.) CAPTURED.—The joyful news of the evacuation of Charleston, the hotbed of Secession, was transmitted over the wires on the 22nd, sending a thrill of pleasure to the hearts of all patriots; and immediately on the heels of this most pleasing and satisfactory intelligence comes the tidings of the capture of Columbia, the capital of South Carolina. Nor is this all to be expected: Wilmington is next in order, and will succumb, doubtlessly, to the victorious arms of Sherman in a few days. Mobile is being evacuated, and the people of the South generally are manifesting a desire to come back into the old Union. Verily, this war has produced stupendous results, it is gradually educating the public mind at the South to the theory that no more slave labor is to till the Southern savannahs, and they begin to see and partially realize the immense benefits to be derived from a free press, free speech, and free labor. In a few years, the energy of the working classes will make the now howling wilderness of the slave States "bloom and blossom as the rose."

Since the above was written the wires have flashed the news of another victory. On the night of the 18th the rebel forces evacuated Fort Anderson on the south bank of Cape Fear river, and our troops marched in next morning. This hastens the capture of Wilmington.

NEW ROAD.—We understand that there is a project on foot to build a road from You Bet, Nevada county, to Gold Run, near this place, that the sum of eight thousand dollars has already been subscribed, and that the work is to be prosecuted with vigor as soon as the weather will permit. This is what all our people should have anticipated months ago, and built a good wagon road from here to Little York, You Bet and Red Dog, when the people of those localities were willing and anxious to coöperate with them in the work. Now, if this enterprise is successfully carried out—and we see no reason to doubt that it will be—our town will be, to all intents and purposes cut off from the lucrative trade it has heretofore enjoyed with the citizens of the above named places, and our neighbor and rival town will have secured to herself a trade that will go far to build her up in importance. This is all right, for her citizens have shown both energy and foresight; and while we have been lying idly by in slothful indolence, they have been exerting every power to make their town a place independent of and in no manner second to our own. We are within two miles travel of Little York, five and a half from You Bet and six and a half from Red Dog, and without a road to either. The trail one is obliged to travel to reach either place is really dangerous, passing over deep chasms, high and precipitous mountains, where, by a single misstep, one would be hurled down hundreds of feet and dashed to pieces, is the only way we can travel across the country, unless we take the stage via Illinoistown to Nevada and from there to You Bet, traveling some thirty-eight miles, by public conveyance, at a cost of fifteen or twenty dollars, to reach a place only five and one-half miles distant. If one owns a conveyance, the distance to be traveled is then about twenty miles' over a road that no man who has any feeling for horse-flesh would ever go but once.

THIEVES.—For the past two or three weeks the hen-roosts of our neighbors have been visited almost nightly, and at every visitation their feathered stock grew "small by degrees and beautifully less," and some of them have "nary chicken" now to call their own. This state of things is owing, it is thought, to the midnight marauding of a few of our celestial inhabitants, whose early education in the requirements of the Ten Commandments have been sadly neglected. The sufferers, however, appear perfectly satisfied to put up with the loss of what has already been taken, if the Johns will allow them to keep what few they have left. Please, Mr. Chinaman, don't steal any more, and probably we'll give you an office when election time comes round.

MORE THIEVING.—On Wednesday of last week, the wife of Mr. H. Runckel purchased a few yards of flannel, and after wetting it, hung it in the yard to shrink. On going to look for the dry-goods she found that it had completely shrunken from the yard, and probably, ere this, covers the back of some miserable devil who was short of undershirts. Verily, thieves are about. Look out for your sawmills, gentlemen; there's no telling what the rascals won't take.

SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH LAID.—We learn from the San Francisco Call of the 22d inst., that the telegraphic cable was successfully laid across the Golden Gate from Fort Point to Lime Point, on the 21st. This was exclusively a private enterprise, and makes the third connection between San Francisco and Sacramento. One goes entirely around the bay, one by San Jose and Stockton, and the one just laid by San Rafael and Petaluma. The whole time occupied in making the connection from the San Francisco to the Marin side was only one hour and a half. This, it is thought, will effectually guard against any interruption of telegraphic communication between the two cities.

CAUGHT.—On Tuesday night last about twelve o'clock, Helling who lives at the Union Restaurant heard some one in his chicken house, and on proceeding to investigate the matter found that a John was there helping himself to gallinas, at whom he fired two shots, and afterwards chased him to near the school-house where he caught John and carried him to the hotel, and placed him under guard till morning, when he (the Chinaman) was taken before Judge Aubury who consigned this fowl prowler after his neighbor's property to the county jail for six months, where he will have sufficient time to repent of his misdeeds, or become a greater scoundrel than ever.

WE have received the first number of the Mendocino Democrat, published at Ukiah City by Mat. Lynch. It contains the valedictory of Mr. Holden, and the salutatory of the present editor. It presents a neat typographical appearance, but is too "copperish" to be supported by a loyal community. Mat. ought to know by this time that writing treason is a losing business, from his experience in Downieville.

THE SANITARY BALL.

On Wednesday evening last, the 22d instant, the ladies and gentlemen of this place and vicinity gathered en masse at the Theater, to witness the scenes which had been prepared by the committee of ladies who had charge of the affair, for the occasion. At eight o'clock the curtain raised at the firing of the gun, and displayed the words, standing out in bold relief, "The first shot is fired." Immediately afterwards Mr. George W. Halsey, representing the sentiment of the loyal people of the Union when they heard that our flag had been insulted at Fort Sumter, rushed upon the stage, and exclaimed to his sister who met him: "My country needs my services, and I must go." His sister then brings his musket and accoutrements, and they march off, when the company, which has just been raised, under command of Major Kopp, marches out, countermarches, stacked arms, and stretched themselves upon the ground to rest, when Mrs. Burckhalter, representing the Daughter of the Regiment, appears, and furnishes the soldiers with refreshments, when the curtain falls. Firing and the clashing of arms is then heard in distance, and the curtain rises, disclosing the dead and wounded on the battlefield, with the army surgeon, represented by Dr. Nelson, and the Spirit of the Sanitary, taken by Miss Susie Pedler, in white and gold, appropriately decorated with the names of the principal battle-fields upon which the Sanitary Commission has labored, placed upon the skirt of her dress, and the words, "Spirit of the Sanitary" on a crown—ministering to the wants of those who had fallen. On each side of the stage stood living statues, one representing Our Country Mourning, by Mrs. E. H. Gaylord, the other representing Hope, by Mrs. E. B. Bonst. After the surgeon, in conjunction with the Sanitary Commission, had done all that was requisite, the Spirit of the Sanitary stepped forward and said: "Many heroes have fallen, for whom Our Country mourns; but Hope smiles brightly on the Spirit of the Sanitary" when the scenes are shifted, disclosing the Goddess of Liberty (Mrs. J. M. Garoutte) seated on a platform, with the coat-of-arms of the United States by her side, and holding a spear upon which was the Cap of Liberty, the whole enveloped in a flood of red light, and forming at once a grand, sublime and beatiful sight, which was sensibly felt by all who witnessed it. A few moments afterwards, L. B. Arnold, Esq., came forward and congratulated his numerous relatives upon the success of their efforts and the future of the country. We had almost forgotten to state that the first scene was brought on by Master Jacob Harris, who recited the Address of the Roman Gladiator, and did it in a masterly and elegant manner. The whole performance gave universal satisfaction, which was showed by the frequent and continued rounds of applause from the friends of the object for which it was gotten up. A number of presents had been donated to the fund, which were sold and re-sold, each one manifesting a generous emulation to outbid his neighbor, and when the prize was secured, immediately donated it back. A bed-quilt, made and donated by Mrs. Mathews, a lady of about sixty years of age, was first put up, and brought, in the aggregate, about $45. A picture frame, made by Mrs. Aubury, in which was placed Falstaff and his Recruits, brought $50. Many other articles were sold, all going to swell the fund for the soldiers. Then the music struck up, and the dancing commenced, those engaged, enjoying themselves to the fullest extent until the morning. The ladies who presided over the New England Kitchen, we understand, did the honors in true Yankee style. There is great credit due to the Committee of Arrangements, but as we have not been furnished with the names of all who exerted themselves it would be invidious to particularize, and we therfore render the praise collectively. The Dutch Flat Brass Band, under the leadership of Wm. Uren, volunteered for the occasion, and discoursed most beautiful music, as did also Messrs. Hammar, Remington, Austin and C. and J. Tyler, making a band of stage and ball-room music seldom heard in an interior town.

The gross receipts of the ball and supper footed up the sum of six hundred and eighty-one dollars and eighty-five cents, which, taking into consideration the number of our population, is more than was realized, either at Placerville or San Jose, and speaks well for the patriotism of our citizens. Thus may it ever be.

EATEN BY RATS.—The Napa Reporter tells the following horrible story which occurred in Napa City on the night of the 17th instant. This story furnishes a most eloquent sermon on the habit of intemperance; the moderate drinker would do well to pause and reflect upon the course which is destined sooner or later to bring him in dishonor to the grave. The Reporter says:

The remains of one "Dick" or Richard Snick, were discovered last night, in a vacant storehouse, near Jacks' Point. They had been partially devoured by rats, which had mangled and eaten the flesh from the fingers and hands and other parts of the exposed person. It was at first supposed he come to his death from an attack of rats, and from the number of these dead vermin lying about had made a desperate resistance. But subsequent examination dispelled this idea. The Coroner's Inquest elicited the following information. The deceased was well known to a number of persons here, who considered him a dangerous character, and from his talk thought he had killed some one; they did not know where he came from, only that he had stated that at some subsequent period he had been in Redington's Drug Store, San Francisco; was much given to drink, and had said his name was Richard Snick. A paper marked "Poison," was found near him, and on analyzing the contents of his stomach, which was highly inflamed, there is no doubt he had committed suicide, and eating his poisoned remains, had killed the rats. The Jury found thereupon, that the remains discovered were those of R. Snick; fifty years old or more; of dissipated habits; nativity unknown; and while labouring under delirium tremens, had taken poison, which occasioned his death.

NOTICE the call of brother Hillhouse to those indebted to him for hardware, tinware, stoves, hydraulic pipe, etc.; he is evidently in earnest, for he never jokes; and those who are behind had better hustle "to the front" as soon as they can, pay their indebtedness and let this old bachelor go East. We suspect he wants a wife and will probably get one next summer. Anyway, pay him, and he can do as he pleases about a wife afterwards.

SORE AFFLICTION.—On Tuesday last, S. C. Hodges received a letter from his wife advising him of her improved condition, and prospects of returning health, and on Wednesday morning a dispatch announcing her death. Mrs. H. was long a resident of this place and leaves many friends to mourn her early demise.

DOING US JUSTICE.

The following article is a communication to the San Francisco Flag, which we copy from that paper of the 20th inst. The writer expresses a desire to do no nothing more than common justice to the merits of our route, and criticises the Alta's sickly and futile attempts to injure the credit of our road with the traveling public. The communication, which we give entire, is headed

A FEW WORDS ABOUT THE ALTA'S "AVALANCHES" AND "DUTCH FLAT."

Editor Flag:—I noticed an article in the Alta of Thursday, which, designedly or otherwise, so graphically falsifies the facts in regard to the condition of and travel upon, the "Dutch Flat and Donner Lake wagon road," that, influenced by any fair disposition to do justice to those interested, I could not do less than state the following facts:

I left Virginia City on last Tuesday morning, at five o'clock, by the California Stage Company's coach, and traveling very comfortably, we arrived at Hunter's, at the Truckee crossing, at half past eight o'clock, where we breakfasted, and arrived at Crystal Peak at ten o'clock, where we took sleighs; and finer sleighing I have never seen than we enjoyed from this on to Donner Lake, where we arrived before three o'clock, P. M.; then we dined, and at a little past four o'clock we started up the summit. It had been squally during the day, and at intervals snowed quite briskly; but notwithstanding the violent winds which had prevailed for several days, we encountered no drifts of any consequence, up to the Donner Lake station. We were about an hour in reaching the summit from Donner Lake, a distance of four miles, and during which time there raged a violent storm of snow and wind. We then passed on at a rapid rate in sleighs to within three miles of Dutch Flat, where we arrived at eleven o'clock in the evening, after an exceedingly easy and pleasant ride of eighteen hours from Virginia City. The Alta, on the authority of an "interior cotemporary," says the snow is from ten to twenty feet deep, for seventy miles. A decent regard for truth might place the average depth at one and a half to three feet for fifty or sixty miles, probably less, and some of this distance was bare of snow, until covered by the then prevailing storm.

"Avalanches thundering down the precipitous sides of the Sierra Nevada, and engulfing everything in their passage," says the Alta, in substance, "are among the trials and insurmountable obstacles that impede the travel and must forever close up this proposed great highway of the Pacific Railroad." It is true that there was a snow-slide that overtook and buried two men about one mile east of the summit, a few weeks ago. This is the only one which has occurred, and the only point on the whole road where there is the least possibility of one of the Alta's "thundering avalanches" reaching the road, and has been entirely avoided by running the road around this point, thus rendering impossible any casualty of the kind in the future. The ample arrangements made by the Company for keeping open the road for the short distance it is liable to drift during heavy snow-storms, give full assurance that no hindrance need be expected upon this route beyond such as may be expected upon any ordinary mountain road during the stormy season. From Dutch Flat to Newcastle we found more or less mud, and in many places the road was rough. We left Dutch Flat at 1 o'clock, and arrived at Newcastle at 8 o'clock, A. M., having been on the road twenty-seven hours from Virginia, including all stoppages, a distance of one hundred and thirty-six miles or thereabouts; and must, according to the authority of the Alta, have traveled seventy miles of this distance over snow ten feet deep, to say nothing of the escape from the "thundering avalanches" that the Alta sees any time it looks in the direction of Dutch Flat. I have not one dollar interest in Dutch Flat, Donner Lake, or the Pacific Railroad; nor have I any interest in the several toll-roads that cross the mountains in Placerville, Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, Pioneer Line of Stages, Latrobe, or Sacramento Valley Railroads.

After taking the boat at Sacramento, we stopped at Freeport for passengers, who had left Virginia by the Pioneer Line of stages the same morning I did, but two hours earlier. I found, by conversing with them, that they traveled from Daggett's Pass to Sportsman's Hall, twelve miles above Placerville, between fifty and sixty miles in sleighs, and that they arrived at Latrobe about ten o'clock, or two hours later than I did at Newcastle. This made their time four hours longer from Virginia to Latrobe by the Pioneer Line, than we were by the California Line from Virginia to Newcastle.

If this plain statement of facts is deemed of sufficient importance to publish, it is at your service.

TRUTH.

This "plain, unvarnished tale" effectually controverts the lying statements of the Alta. It also shows that the public are beginning to see the advantages of our route, and to manifest a disposition to contradict the falsehoods scattered broadcast by the editor of the "blanket sheet" to foist their paid-for opinions upon those who have traveled all the routes, and found the others so much inferior to the Dutch Flat road. As to there being "ten to twenty feet of snow" on the summit, that is about as near the truth as the well known mendacity of the editor of the Alta will allow him to come.

THE PRESIDENT AND SENATOR CONNESS.—The following extract from the Washington correspondence of the Sacramento Union, dated Jan. 13th, disposes of some of Simonton's late twaddle to the San Francisco Bulletin:

By late California papers your correspondent learns that some persons in Washington, with whom the wish is evidently father to the thought, have industriously circulated the report that the relations existing between Senator Conness and President Lincoln are not of a cordial character. Without assuming any superior intelligence, I will take the liberty of saying that I have the emphatic affirmation of the President that the relations existing between himself and Conness are most cordial and friendly, and that he (the President) felt annoyed when he was told that a baseless fabrication like that above alluded to was in circulation in California.

THE PAPER CURRENCY.—The amount of Government paper money outstanding now is as follows, per official reports to January 1st:

Greenbacks	$433,160,569
1 year 5 per cent	41,225,568
2 year 5 per cent	13,981,031
2 year 5 per cent. coupons	50,308,450
3 year 6 per cent., compound	111,479,470
Fractional Notes	20,725,871
National Bank Notes	85,000,000
Total	$755,980,859

There is authority to issue $17,000,000 more Legal Tenders, and $30 000,000 more fractional notes. The amount of National Notes to be issued is $215,000,000, making altogether an aggregate of $1,000,000,000 in paper money soon to be afloat, even if no further issues are authorized. The people at the East are getting sensitive about increased currency issues, and any legislation in this direction will be likely to create a currency panic, and an inflation in gold such as the past has not known. The N. Y. Post says, upon authority, that no more gold-bearing bonds will be issued: that no additional inflation of the currency will take place, and that "henceforth the Government will rely for its entire expenditures upon the seven-thirty loan and the taxes"—about $100,000,000 of this loan remains untaken, and the total receipts of the Government from Internal Revenue and all other sources amount to about $25,000,000 monthly.

☞ JUST received a dispatch announcing the fact that our flag floats from the walls of Fort Sumter. Where is the gun? It should be fired now, if ever.

TAXES.—The Stars and Stripes seems to think that we are jealous or envious of its prosperity. Such is not the fact. That paper secured the county printing, and we are perfectly willing it should have it—at the price. The advertisement spoken of, we believe, comes under the head of "county printing," and, of course, we could not expect any of that while the Stars and Stripes has the contract, and we don't want it while we have advertising patronage that pays us better. That paper might have been a little more courteous, however, in noticing our article on the delinquent taxes. If the District Attorney is determined to have his "pound of flesh," we see no other way but to give it to him; but, as we remarked last week, he might have pursued a different course, still conforming with the law and by so doing greatly accommodated the people. "Maudlin" appears to be a favorite expression with Selkirk, and can only be accounted for by the fact that he is so often in that delectable condition that in his lucid moments—if he has any—his previous debauch is stamped upon his memory. We don't drink. The beautiful allusion made to "Newfoundland pups," in connection with the District Attorney, falls very far short of the mark, as it is a well known fact that Col. Tweed did not own a "purp" in the world, unless he considered that the editor of the Stars and Stripes belonged to him, and no one in his senses would class him in the same category with the noble and sagacious Newfoundland breed.

Again, Selkirk says that we are "furnished with a happy penchant for lauding a political opponent at the expense of an adherent of the Union party." If there was anything to doubt as to the justice of our remarks on the course pursued by the District Attorney, so far as the Stars and Stripes is concerned, the above quotation would certainly settle it; for if the former officer acted in such a manner, in this particular, as to deserve praise, and that action was opposite to the course pursued by the present incumbent, it certainly shows that his official action is deserving of censure in the matter of accommodation to the taxpayers. We do not intend to heap fulsome flattery upon the head of every man who comes out "Union, Union!" but shall take the liberty of canvassing their actions before we endorse them. Nothing has injured the prospects of success to the party so much as a blind adherence to men, because they happened to act with the great Union organization, and we know of no one more given to this course than Selkirk, when there is a point to be made for himself. We do not intend these remarks for Col. Tweed, for we are satisfied that he has the consciousness of doing what he considers his duty in the premises, so far as the law is concerned; yet he is not infallible, and is as liable to err as any one else.

Jo. Hamilton, while District Attorney of this county, collected the delinquent taxes as closely, we venture to say, as Col. Tweed will; yet he sent the delinquent lists to the several townships for collection, thereby showing a disposition to do his duty, and at the same time saving the delinquents all the trouble and expense possible. The fact that Col. Tweed has failed to see that he is required to show a spirit of accommodation by the "law prescribing his official duties as District Attorney, or in his official bond," or "in his oath of office," probably brings him to the conclusion that by doing so he would be derelict in his duty. We "can't see it in that light," and would much rather have written an article praising him for his consideration towards delinquent taxpayers.

PARSON BROWNLOW'S "SOCIAL AMENITIES."—The Flag says that Copperhead guerrillas in Tennessee are destined to have a Governor after them who does not believe in struggling, through the means of fat suppers and Mischauza dances, to keep up friendly social intercourse with them. It is doubtful that Parson Brownlow would ever invite W.T. Coleman, H. A. Cobb, Gough, Wooley Kearney or any other Broom Ranger to a Social Amenity feast.

Here is his speech before the Tennessee Union Convention:

NASHVILLE, Jan. 14—The Union Convention, in its session to-day, nominated W. G. Brownlow for Governor by acclamation.

A delegate asked him if he would accept the nomination, whereupon he responded in the following language.

"GENTLEMEN: I settle the controversy by my answering you that I will accept. [Applause.] I cannot be expected to do anything more, and I certainly ought to do no less than tender to you, as a convention, my sincere and unfeigned thanks for the honor and distinction you have conferred on me.

"I will not speak to you gentlemen; but what I lack in speaking, if the people should ratify the nomination, I will try to make up in deeds and acts: and, God being my help, if you will send up a Legislature to reorganize the militia and reorganother necessary business, I will put an end to this infernal system of guerrilla fighting in the State—in East, Middle and West Tennessee—if we have to shoot every man concerned. [Loud and long-continued applause.]"

A CONFEDERATE widow, in a piteous appeal published in the Richmond Sentinel, announces that whereas, her yearly income is only one thousand two hundred dollars, her yearly tax is one thousand three hundred and sixty dollars. But what matters this to Jeff. Davis and his satellites, so long as they can wield the scepter of authority, and vote themselves additional pay? Though the entire Confederacy be filled with widows and orphans, whose dire straits have imbued them with a "hunger for eternity," the rebel junta must thrive and draw their rations.

MANY of the Jews of the United States have shown much patriotism since the war began. From Ohio 12,000 have gone to fight for the Union flag; from New York, 10,000; from Illinois, 5,000; from Michigan and Wisconsin, 3,000; and from other States enough to make a total of 40,000. They have also given of their wealth to the soldiers. They have established five asylums for disabled soldiers, their widows and orphans, the benefits of which are limited to no faith or creed—one at New York, one at Philadelphia, one at Cincinnati, one at Chicago and one at St. Louis.

ARE WE ON THE LORD'S SIDE?

I am aware that the greater portion of the reading community will shrug their shoulders and hastily glance at the "next column," when they notice the subject upon which I have written; but I know, also that God has a people here, and let us, dear brethren, for a few moments think seriously upon that subject, which lies so near the Christian's heart. Let us search our hearts, and see if indeed the love of Christ dwelleth in us. Do we exert our entire influence for the cause of our Redeemer, or are we living as those "having no hope, and without God in the world?" Are we willing to acknowledge before the scorner even, that Jesus is our dearest friend?

Dear reader, have you and I forgotten that sacred hour when the "still small voice" whispered to our burdened souls: "Peace, be still?" Oh! what joy and peace we found in believing, and was it then a cross to speak a word for our blessed Master? Oh, no! We went forth to "Tell to others round,

What a dear Savior we had found."

And then we solemnly promised to be dead to the world, but alive to Christ! That vow was registered in heaven—have we been faithful to it?

It is indeed sad to see those who once loved the house of God and its worship, turning to the world for happiness, trying to satisfy their immortal souls with the husks of this life! What a reproach is thus brought upon the precious cause of our Redeemer! Such say to the ungodly, "your pleasures are more to be desired than the smiles of our Heavenly FatherFather, and to you I turn for happiness." God pity them, and draw them to himself! But are there not some of us, who have a name to live, and yet are dead? Are we not trying to serve God and mammon? Do we not neglect to pray in our families? By pursuing such a course, do we not teach our children to doubt the reality of our religion? I once knew a young lady whose mother had been professedly pious from her girlhood; yet that daughter could not say she believed her mother was a christian! What an influence for a mother to exert! She had taught her child lessons of worldliness, sent her to dancing-school that she might be graceful—a strange place for a godly mother to send a child to learn grace—but she had never knelt in her presence and cried, "God be merciful to me, a sinner!" Have we not reason to fear that of such it will finally be said, "Thou art weighed in the balance, and found wanting!" Do we strive as earnestly to institute a weekly prayer-meeting as to get up balls and parties? Would it not be more agreeable "to gaze upon the dancing throng" than to speak publicly of what Jesus has done for our souls? Have we not forgotten these words: "Then they that feared the Lord spake often, one to another, and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before Him, for them that feared the Lord and thought upon his name. "And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that day when I wake up my jewels." Will not the time past of our lives "suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles?" Shall we not commence anew to serve the Lord? It may be hard for us to say, "Let others do as they will; as for me I will serve the Lord" But we have not to do it alone. We have "a Friend that sticketh closer than a brother," and has He not promised to sustain us us if we will cast our cares on Him? Oh! how sweet the promise, and how blessed the privilege, to be permitted to tell Him all our sorrows with the assurance that He hears us, and "as a Father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him." Our Father says, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." Let us seek God's help, that the remaining years of our lives be devoted to his service; for soon the angels will say, "come up higher."

"There is a land where every pulse is thrilling,
With rapture earth's sojourners may not know;
Where heaven's repose the weary heart is stilling,
And peacefully life's time-tossed current flows.

"Thither my weak and weary feet are tending,
Savior and Lord, with thy frail child abide!
Guide me towards home, where all my wand'rings ending,
I shall see Thee, and shall be satisfied!"

ISORA.

THE MCDOWELL "SOCIAL AMENITIES" appear to have had a wonderfully reconciliative effect in Sacramento. The Union newspaper, which used to be denouncing Copperheads in its usual ferocious manner, is now quoting extensively from Governor-General Brown and the Grass Valley National—especially their calumnies of Union men and newspapers. The Union accuses Federal soldiers of stealing chickens and garroting "our citizens;" the chief of the Wisconsin "Forty-Thieves" copies and makes some pleasant allusions to the high "standing" of the Union. Beriah makes some "grouty" paragraphs about the Flag; the Union reproduces and compliments the Governor-General. We are glad to see this happy millennial state of things, this commendable oblivion of "political differences of opinion." If the "Lion and the Lamb" have not "lain down together," the Ass and the Gorilla have agreed on an armistice.—S. F. Flag.

DR. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.—The operation of this palatable remedy upon the stomach, liver and excretory organs is singularly soothing and conservative. It regulates, recruits and purifies them. Dyspepsia in all its forms yields to its control and invigorating properties, and it is recommended to mothers, enfeebled by the cares and duties of maternity, as the safest and best tonic they can probably use. In all the crises of female life it will be found eminently useful, and elderly persons will derive much more benefit from it than from ordinary stimulants. Sold by all Druggists and dealers every where. HOSTETTER, SMITH & DEAN,

HOPE FOR THE AFFLICTED.—In another part of this paper will be found the advertisement of the celebrated Institute established by Dr. J. C. YOUNG, in 1850. In this age of deceit and charlatanism it is a boon to the suffering to point out to them where they are sure of obtaining the wished for relief and cure. Under the care of the skillful Doctor the sick and troubled can divest themselves of their burdens of pain; lay aside their cross, and secure health and happiness. If you are sick or in trouble, do not hesitate. Read the advertisement and follow the advice. Do not forget the number nor the manner of directing your letter. NOTICE.—TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONcern.—That whereas the north half of the south west quarter and the north half of the southeast quarter of Section No. 8, Township 12 N, Range 7 E, Mount Diablo base and Meridian, have heretofore by the affidavits of various parties filed in the United States Land Office at Marysville been declared to be mineral lands, and by reason whereof have heretofore been witheld from pre-emption and sale. Now the undersigned hereby gives notice that he will on Thursday, the 9th day of March, 1865, make application to the Register of said U. S. Land Office for permission to file his declaratory statement claiming pre-emption to said land, and to make proof that the said land is more valuable for agricultural than mining purposes, unless sufficient cause to the contrary is then and there shown. ATTEMPT TO ROB A BANK.—The Cleveland Leader tells the annexed thrilling incident of crime:

On Saturday morning, the 17th of December, the usually quiet village of Ravenna was thrown into an unprecedented excitement by the reported attempt to murder and rob one of the most esteemed citizens of the village, at his place of business. About 8 o'clock in the morning, Mr. J. C. Prentice was alone in the store of D. M. Clewell, where he is engaged, when a young man by the name of W. W. Flower, who had been stopping in the place several days, came in and asked Mr. Prentice to change a hundred dollar bill for him. Mr. Prentice stepped to the safe, unlocked it, took out some money, and was in the act of counting it, when the man struck him a heavy blow with an iron poker. The villain probably inflicted several blows with the poker, as the marks witness; and then seizing Mr. P. by the coat collar, dragged him down the cellar, and taking a large stone, the size of a man's head, out of the cellar wall, attempted to crush the head of his already partially insensible victim, and actually inflicted several blows with the stone. He then went to the rear cellar door, unbolted, and opened it so as to provide himself means of escape. Strange to say, his object had not been accomplished, and Mr. Prentice revived sufficiently to be conscious, when, to his horror, the villain returned to see if his work had been sure. Stooping down and putting his hand or knee on the body of Mr. Prentice, he bent his head down to that of his victim, to learn if he still breathed. Mr. Prentice lay with his face down, and though badly mangled and almost unconscious, he inferred the purpose of the murderer, and to deceive him he held his breath and feigned death. The villain intently watched for signs of life, and this terrible moment Mr. Prentice thought would be his last. But, fortunately, the store door opened, and some one entered. The villain hearing some one coming above, fled in haste. The man who entered the store went back to the rear end, and seeing no one in, and the safe open and money scattered on the floor, at once discovered that something was wrong, and going to the cellar door, which was open, called. No one replied, but at length a faint noise from Mr. Prentice reached him and on going down he discovered the state of affairs, and brought Mr. Prentice up stairs. Medical aid was promptly at hand, and immediate pursuit of the criminal was made. A meeting of the citizens was called, a reward of five hundred dollars was offered for the apprehension of the guilty party, and organized efforts were made for the search. About 12 o'clock, he was found secreted in an outhouse in the rear of Collins' house.

The people were greatly excited at the outrage, and nothing but the strong respect felt there for law and order prevented his being lynched. He was lodged in jail to await his examination.

Flower is a young man of very pleasant face and manners, slender and almost effeminate in appearance, and apparently the last that one would suspect of such a crime.

"THE BIGGEST FOOL THAT EVER LIVED."—We once heard of several wives making up a purse to be given to one of their number whose husband should chance to have the most illustrious name. The first commenced: "My husband's name is William." Then followed a long list of all the Williams whose names had been handed down to posterity, commencing with William the Conqueror, and ending with Shakspeare. The second said: "My husband's name is George;" and all the Georges, good, bad and indifferent, were brought up to prove her right to the purse. The third chimed in with "Henry," urging her claims as eloquently as the rest; while the fourth, a meek little creature, with no pretensions whatever, quietly remarked: "Well my husband's name is Joseph, and I don't think I ever heard of a single Joseph who ever distinguished himself, unless it was the Joseph told of in the Bible, who wrestled Potiphar's wife; and I certainly think that he was the biggest fool that e-v-e-r l-i-v-e-d!" It is hardly necessary to add that the purse was delivered over to the last speaker, without a murmur.

AMMONIA IN FIRE.—An apothecary at Nantes has just discovered by the merest accident that ammonia will put out fires. He happened to have about seventy litres of benzine in his cellar, and his boy, on going down carelessly with a light, had set fire to it. Assistance was speedily at hand, and pail after pail of water was being poured into the cellar without producing any effect, when the apothecary himself took up a pail which was standing neglected in the corner, and emptied the contents into the cellar. To his astonishment the flames were quenched as if by magic, and upon examination he found that the pail, which belonged to his laboratory, had contained a quantity of liquid ammonia. The result is easy to explain on scientific principles; for ammonia, which consists of 82 parts of nitrogen and 18 of hydrogen, is easily decomposed by heat, and the nitrogen thus set free in the midst of a conflagration must infallibly put out the flames. A large supply of liquid ammonia properly administered would be the promptest fire extinguisher ever imagined.

A SPECIMEN OF STOCKTON ELOQUENCE.—The Stockton Record, of January 30th, contained the following:

We have often read of some fancy attempts at oratory on the part of some "mustang" lawyers in California, but a burst of eloquence made by a lawyer of an interior city, a few days since, was decidedly trascendental. He was defending a young man for stealing a watch and tried to prove an alibi for his client; "Why, gentlemen of the jury," said he, "this attack on the honesty and probity of my client is a shameful conspiracy to ruin his reputation. At the very moment when, as alleged in the complaint this robbery was perpetrated, in a leafy grove far from the busy haunts of men I myself beheld this unsophisticated youth seated on a moss-grown bank, with his arm twined lovingly around the waist of one of the frail daughters of the Montezumas, and whispering the accents of youthful love in her sun-burnt ear."

ARREST OF REBEL EMISSARIES.—The vigilance and industry of the officers under Major General Dix and Police Superintendent Kennedy, have resulted in the arrest of four alleged notorious and important rebel pirates and incendiaries, who are shortly to be tried by a military commission which is to assemble at Fort Lafayette. One of these men is said to be the Lake Erie pirate Bell, another a confederate of his, and the two others are charged with being leaders in the plot to burn down New York. All these men were arrested on our Northern border, and three of them, it is stated, hold commissions in the rebel army.

BRAZIL.—According to a statement published in the Paris Patrie, the President of the Brazilian province of Bahia recently refused to a United States dispatch boat permission to put into the port of Bahia, on the ground that there was in that port a mercantile vessel bearing the Confederate flag, and that he did not wish to see a recurrence of an incident similar to that of the Florida. The United States vessel, after remaining five hours in the entrance of All Saints bay, put to sea again.

WANTS INFORMATION.—Mrs. Mary Ann Kiefir, residing at Columbus, Ohio, wants information of her husband, who has not been heard from for some time. One person had informed her that he knew a man by the name of Kiefir in Victoria, Vancouver Island, in 1862. He has light hair, sandy colored whiskers, round face, dark grey eyes, clear voice, high shoulders, and is stout built, about five feet and nine inches high, and thirty-five years old. Mrs. Kiefir appears to be of opinion that he is in California, and wishes papers in this State to publish this statement.

RECIPE FOR A HAPPY HOME.—Six things are requisite to a happy home. Integrity must be the architect, and tidiness the upholsterer. It must be warmed by affection, lighted up with cheerfulness, and industry must be the ventilator, renewing the atmosphere and bringing in fresh salubrity day by day; while over all, as a protecting canopy and glory, nothing will suffice except the blessing of God.

PRIVATE MEDICAL INSTITUTE

Established by
DR. J. C. YOUNG, IN 1850,
For the Cure of Private Diseases of whatever nature
AND ALL FEMALE COMPLAINTS.

CONSULTING OFFICE,
540 WASHINGTON STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO, : : : : CALIFORNIA
NO CURE, NO PAY.

Consultation by letter or otherwise, FREE. For direction of letters, see below.

THIS CELEBRATED INSTITUTE has enjoyed on this coast an uninterupted success of fourteen years, and has become one of the renowned Hospitals of the age. What the celebrated Lock Hospital is to London, and the no less renowned establishment of Ricord is to Paris, this Institute has become to the Pacific coast. The thousands annually received and cured place it in point of number of patients among the very first of the world, and the success of its treatment ranks it second to none.

PRIVATE DISEASES IN MALES and IRREGULARITIES IN FEMALES are the great destroyers of health. They insidiously attack the system and gradually undermine and destroy it; they drive the bloom from the cheek, the lustre from the eye, the strength and vigor from the frame; they give to the world puny and diseased offspring, and poison, through successive generations the race of man. The marks can be seen in Scrofula, Consumption, Cripples, the Idiotic, the Paralytic, the Insane, etc.

There is no more terrible scourge to the human race than those diseases arising from the contamination of Venerial Poison. The mildest forms, by retreating to the blood, hold ever over the one afflicted, the sword of destruction that is liable at any moment to fall and blight—to utterly destroy—all earthly hopes.

MERCURY, recognized as the most fatal medical enemy to man, combining with the Venerial, doubles in dangers. Those who have been treated with that pernicious mineral poison are not cured: the disease has only assumed a new form.

Do not be satisfied with partial cures that leave the poison to crawl through the system, eating its way into the tissues and organs beneath the apparently smooth surface, to burst out in the future with a virulence that will baffle the effects of medicine. WHEN PERFECT CURES can be obtained by consulting a physician whom long practice and thorough investigation into the causes of DISEASES of the URINARY ORGANS enables to determine at once the nature of the disease.

In all diseasses entrusted to the Doctor's care, PERFECT, SPEEDY and PERMANENT

Cures are Always Guaranteed,

In syphilis and its adjuncts; Gonnorhœa and its accompanying diseases; and all disorders of the Bladder, Kidneys and prostrate; Seminal Weakness; Diseases of the Heart and Lungs; Dyspepsia; Indigestion, Impotency; Incipient Consumption, and all diseases of the urinary organs, in either sex, cure always warranted, OR NO PAY REQUIRED at the PRIVATE

MEDICAL INSTITUTE,

SEMINAL WEAKNESS OR SPERMATORROEA.

The young man who experiences that growing weakness in his muscular and mental organization should stop to consider whence it arises. He will find in the weakness of the back, trembling of the limbs, disordered digestion, unaccountable failing of the powers of the mind, distaste for society, dread of impending trouble, forebodings of evil, sleeplessness, troubled and lacivious dreams accompanied by growing deafness, loss of muscular power, and numerous other symptoms of disorganization, the positive traces of that most terrible and destructive of all diseases, Seminal Weakness—wasting away his powers, destroying his hope of life and manhood, and dragging him along the broken path of his existence toward a premature and loathsome grave. To him who finds his life dribbling out in the discharge of the vital principal of existence in nocturnal and diurnal emissions, the mere cessation of its appearance brings no assurance of relief.

Marriage, that holy office, the safeguard and hope of manhood, brings to such an one no hope of cure, but adds to his misery in the knowledge that the one who looks to him for so much of her happiness, is a victim of his evil, and an innocent companion of his punishment. He adds to his misery and disorder until hope leaves him. There is no rescue except in proper and skillful treatment. Consult, then, at once, a physician whom long practice and careful research has made thoroughly conversant with every phase of the disease. Those who have become the victims of solitary vices, that dreadful, fascinating and destructive habit, which fills thousands of sick rooms with paralytics and consumptives, and hundreds of untimely graves with its misguided victims, should consult, without a moment's delay, one who will sympathize with their sufferings. To such the Doctor would especially address himself, giving to each and all assurance of a PERFECT and PERMANENT CURE, without hindrance from business, change of diet, or fear of exposure.

Do not forget the address. See below.

IMPORTANT TO FEMALES.

When a female is in trouble or afflicted with disease, and requires medical or surgical assistance, the enquiry should be, Where is there a physician who is fully competent to administer relief, and whose respectable standing in society recommends him to the confidence of the community? The Doctor, understanding how imperatively necessary these requirements are, feels called upon to interpose, and by the attention of the afflicted to the fact that he has been a Professor of Obstetrics and Female Diseases for twenty years, and is fully qualified to administer in all cases, both medically and surgically, not in a superficial manner, but in as thorough a manner as years of study and practice—both in hospitals and private families—can make, to save them from the hands of the unqualified, unscrupulous and designing. Therefore families can rely upon him as upon a father. All in affliction can find in him one who can feel and sympathize with and befriend them in trouble—one in whose secrecy and the utmost confidence can be placed. Consultation, by letter or otherwise, Free. See address below.

THE CELEBRATED FEMALE REMEDIES, compounded from the private prescription of Dr. Young, have now obtained a most extended popularity, and are correctly viewed to be the safest and surest remedies or the complaints for which they are applied. The constantly accruing testimonials of their efficacy declare them to be pre-eminently superior in their action. No lady should be without these Renovating Agents. None genuine unless procured at this office.

The California Fly-Killing Liquid.

FLY PAPER KILLS BY ITS THOUSANDS. THE Liquid Fly Kills its tens of thousands. This preparation for killing flies gives the greatest satisfaction of anything ever yet used. It is now improved to the highest killing point. It is of such a nature and so speedy of effect that the flies will not spot the walls and windows, which makes the use of other preparations so objectionable.

Have you Heart-burn or Dyspepsia? Cure it by the use of Rosenbaum's Bitters!
Are you suffering from Dysentery or Diarrhœa? Use
Rosenbaum's Bitters!
And be relieved. Did you get tight last night, and feel bad in consequence? Drink a few glasses of Rosenbaum's Bitters!
And it will set you up at once. Are you troubled with Vertigo or Nausea? You can be quickly relieved by the use of Rosenbaum's Bitters!
Are you a martyr to Billious Diseases, or Fever and Ague? You can soon be restored to health by the use of Rosenbaum's Bitters!

The unequalled efficacy of these bitters for the cure of all diseases of the stomach and bowels, and their wide spread reputation, having induced some unprincipled persons to counterfeit them, the Proprietors have determined to prevent this in future, by putting them up in a new style. After this they will be packed in Square Bottle, having

PUTNAM'S Clothes WRINGER.

IT IS THE ONLY RELIABLE
Self-adjusting Wringer.

NO WOOD-WORK TO SWELL OR SPLIT

No Thumb-Screws to get out of Order.

Waranted with or without Cog-wheels.

It took the FIRST PREMIUM at Fifty-seven State and County Fairs in 1863, and is, without an exception the best Wringer ever made. Patented in the United States, England, Canada, and Australia. Agents wanted in every town, and in all parts of the world. Energetic agents can make from $3 to $10 per day. Sample Wringer sent Express-paid on receipt of price. No. 2, $6 50. No. 1, $7 50. No. F, $8 50. No. A, $9 50. Manufactured and sold, wholesale and retail, by the

PUTNAM MANUFACTURING CO.,
No. 13 Platt str., New York, Cleveland, Ohio, and Birmingham, Vt.
S. C. NORTHROP, Agent.

WHAT EVERYBODY KNOWS:

That iron well galvanized will not rust; that a simple machine is better than a complicated one; that a wringer should be self adjusting and efficient; that thumb-screws and fastenings cause delay and trouble to regulate and keep in order; that wood soaked in hot water will swell, shrink and split; that wood bearings for a shaft to run in will wear out; that the Putnam Wringer, with or without cog-wheels, will not tear the clothes; that cog-wheel regulators are not essential, that the Putnam Wringer has ALL the advantages, and not one of the disadvantages above named; that all who have tested it, pronounce it the best Wringer ever made; that it will wring a Thread or a Bed Quilt without alteration.

We might fill the paper with testimonials, but only insert a few to convince the skeptical, if such there be; and we say to all, TEST Putnam's Wringer. Test it thoroughly with ANY and ALL others, and if not entirely satisfactory, return it.

Putnam Manufacturing Co.—Gentlemen:—I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zinc will not oxidize or rust one particle. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible, and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.

Respectfully yours, JNO. W. WHEELER.
Cleveland, Ohio.

Many years' experience in the galvanising business enable me to indorse the above statement in all particulars. JNO. C. LEFFERTS,
New York, Jan. 1864. No. 100 Beekman str.

We have tested Putnam's Wringer by practical working and know that it will do. It is cheap; it is simple; it requires no room, whether at work or at rest; a child can operate it; it does its duty thoroughly; it saves time and its saves wear and tear. We earnestly advise all who have much washing to do, with all intelligent persons who have any, to buy this Wringer. It will pay for itself in a year at most.

INVENTORS, MECHANICS, AGRICULTURISTS,

Are directed to the annual prospectus of the cheapest and best Mechanical Journal in the world.

The Illustrated Scientific American,

A New Volume of which commences Jan. 1, 1865.

THIS VALUABLE JOURNAL HAS BEEN published nineteen years, and during all this time it has been the firm and steady advocate of the Inventor, Mechanic, Manufacturer, and Farmer, and the faithful chronicler of the progress of Art, Science and Industry.

The SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN is the largest, the only reliable, and most widely circulated journal of the kind now published in the United States. It has witnessed the growth of nearly all the great inventions and discoveries of the day, most of which have been illustrated and described in its columns. It also contains a Weekly Official List of all the Patent Claims, a feature of great value to all Inventors and Patentees.

In the Mechanical Department, a full account of all improvements in Machinery will be given. Also practical articles upon the various Tools used in workshops and manufactories.

Steam and Mechanical Engineering will continue to receive careful attention, and all experiments and practical results attained will be fully recorded.

Woollen, Cotton and other Manufacturing Interests will have special attention. Also, Firearms, War Implements, Ordnance, War Vessels, Railway Machinery, Mechanics' Tools, Electric, Chemical and Mathematical Apparatus, Wood and Lumber Machines, Hydraulics, Pumps, Water-wheels, etc.; Household and FARM IMPLEMENTS—this latter department being very full and of great value to Farmers and Gardeners; Articles embracing every department of Popular Science, which everybody can understand.
